NSA Professor Robert E. Looney is editor of a new handbook published through Routledge, titled Handbook of International Trade Agreements: Country, Regional and Global Approaches. The handbook explores international and regional preferential trade agreements through which countries with similar interests can benefit from economic liberalization and expanded trade. It also explores the strengths and weaknesses of these agreements as well as how agreement members can sustain growth and prosperity given the perpetual challenges of the global economic environment.

Also, NSA Professor Anne Clunan contributes a chapter titled "Neoliberal Globalization and its Opponents."

This is the 100th book published by the current NSA faculty members! To see the complete list, click here.
